Take Care!

We all too frequently hear disquieting stories about juvenile delinquency in the United States. Some of our far-seeing social workers and educators are giving the problem study. Juvenile delinquency's increase is commonly attributed to the war. But delinquency was growing even before the war started. All too many criminals nowadays are beardless youth. Some of this must be due to defects in our system of educating the young, as well as in the loosening of family ties and paying less attention to religious duties. The church, the home and the school have always been the moulders of character in the United States. Change of customs and employment of women have had something to do with loosening family ties. Too many people are now prone to neglect their duties to God as well as to their family. And in some instances the educational processes of the nation have been permeated by the doctrines of subverters with the result that many of our youth have paid less and less attention to their duty to their home and their parents, less reverence to the men and the ideals which have made this country great.

It is true, however, that the war has accelerated this tendency toward delinquency. There is more than one reason for this. In the first place there has been a further loosening of family ties. Men are working longer, or are in the service away from home, and many wives and mothers are doing their bit to help their country although this necessarily means the relaxing of discipline at home in many cases. Again stories and pictures of bombing and bloodshed necessarily fill the pages of our newspapers and are recounted over the radio. Children cannot help being impressed by matter-of-fact discussion of slaughter and carnage. Unfortunately, such things are as unavoidable in a just war of defense as in a war of conquest.

Last, and perhaps not least, delinquency has been accelerated by the present wave of what we term war prosperity. Wages are high and everyone who wants to work, and has the physical ability to do so, can get a job, regardless of his age. Many millions of Americans are making more money now than ever before. So long as the war lasts this prospertiy will last. We need prosperity will last. We need in our armies, and the men in the armies of our allies. All national effort is being bent toward the task of winning the war. An unprecedented demand for labor and materials is the result.

We all understand that the

Two Dens of Cub Scouts Meet

The Cub Scouts are beginning to function, Den Number 1, the Harrison avenue den at the home of Mrs. Charles Baker held its first meeting yesterday, with nine boys assigned to the group, and Den Number 2, Cheerio Corner den meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry A. Smith, also with a group of nine boys. Two more dens will begin next week.

Warren Eddlemon is chairman of the Dad's committee, David Ribble, secretary and Rev. J. H. Bennett, acting Cub Master.

Two more cub dens within the Campbell township are urgently needed at once to house the boys applying for opportunities to become Cubs. A shed, garage or lean-to and a suitable space for play is all that is required. The leadership will be found for such homes should the mother be unable to assist actively. There are plenty of workers but not suitable places. Those interested are asked to phone the Cub Master Rev. J. H. Bennett, Campbell 3686.

Easter - - 1943

The deep religious significance and solemnity of the Easter season, rather than The Easter Parade, with its gay display of feminine finery, will undoubtedly dominate our observance this year of the day that bespeaks new hope and life everlasting.

For Easter is the promise that after war there shall be peace; it is the promise that the darkest hours known to man shall be blotted out in the glory of the Resurrection; it is the promise that there is a divine providence which watches over men when all mortal safeguards are of no avail.

To men and women who have loved ones in the armed forces, fighting for the simple precepts and beliefs of a Christian people, Easter is a day that will rekindle hope, and burnish the light of courage. Christ, too, had his Gethsemane, but today the cross has become a symbol of life eternal.

On the anniversary of the fall of Bataan, General MacArthur prayed. In a life boat, far out on the Pacific, when rescue seemed a forlorn hope, Eddie Rickenbacker and his men prayed. And on Easter this year, the American people, we believe, will pray, not just that their sons shall return to them, but that the whole world shall find a day of them, but that the whole world shall find a day of Resurrection—a day which will mark the end of the war and bloodshed, and the birth of lasting peace.

BUY WAR STAMPS AND BONDS

We on the home front face one of the most personal challenges of this war to date. That challenge is whether or not we are willing to sacrifice to a sufficient extend to lend our government thirteen billion dollars within the next few weeks.

To do the job, you and I, and everyone we know, are going to have to dig down in our sock—to dig out some of those dollars we have salted away for a rainy day—as well as to take a good hunk out of this month's pay check.

This is a job that has to be done. Sure, we on the home front are feeling the pinch of war. We have gasoline rationing, food rationing, higher taxes and a lot of other little discomforts. But they are nothing compared with the agonies faced daily by our men—men from this community among them—out there on the fighting fronts of the world.

Yes, we know that this constant demand for more money out of our pockets and out of our paychecks—an increasing amount each month—is monotonous. But so is sitting in a fox-hole or lying in a slit trench day after day, slogging through the hell of a humid jungle or that of Sahara sand.

Our sons, friends, brothers, husbands and others we know are doing that for us. They are facing something more terrible than cutting down on a few things that we once thought were essentials to the American standard of living in order to do it, too. As Secretary Morgenthau has said: "Shall we be more tender with our dollars than with the lives of our sons?"

To win this war is going to cost more and more money—and more and more lives. But the price of freedom is high. We can not; we dare not let our fighting men down. They give their lives—you lend your money! Don't wait for someone to come around and ask you to pitch in with your dollars. Do it today—and do it until you feel worthy of the boys in the front lines.

LET THE PEOPLE KNOW

If the order barring newspaper representatives from the United Nations food conference is to be taken as an indication of the procedure to be followed in other vital Allied conferences on war and post-war problems, then it must be regretfully concluded that our leaders have made the first serious blunder in their efforts to reach world understanding which might banish future wars and give real hope of an intelligent approach to international affairs.

The American people—and the people of the other interested countries—must be a party to any agreements entered into, if they are to be successfully carried out. And they will never stand for being handed a neatly-tied package of pacts and treaties when the conferences are done, with no knowledge of the negotiations which went on and no opportunity to voice their approval or disapproval of the deliberations.

If there is to be a world understanding, it is elemental that it must be based on understanding; certainly it cannot be hatched in secrecy. The peoples of the democracies, we believe, are tired of war; they are open to suggestions that may help to smooth out international relations and end wars. But they want open covenants, openly arrived at. President Roosevelt made a bad beginning when he started out by banning the press from the conferences and we hope that wiser counsel will prevail before the sessions at Hot Springs, Virginia, actually get under way.

BAUBLES FOR BUDDIES

"Baubles, baubles, whose got some baubles?" That is the question the San Francisco League for Service men is asking in its campaign, just launched, for costume or "junk" jewelry.

The whole thing started when a shipment of games from the League to armed forces in the South Pacific contained, by accident, some strings of beads and a few 10c store clips.

Immediately word came back to "Send us more." It was revealed in a message from Lt.-General H. F. Harmon that 52 foxholes were dug for a brooch and a pair of earrings. Other officers stated that the natives would bring the wounded from the battlefields, carry munitions and supplies through the jungles, and perform many other difficult tasks for these bright baubles which they prize above all else.

The League is appealing to the public for donations of any type of "junk" jewelry. It does not matter how cheap it is, nor if stones are missing. Even an earring without its mate will prove of value.

Send or bring your "Baubles for Buddies to Barter" to the San Francisco League for Service Men, 1430 Van Ness avenue, San Francisco. The League will to the rest.

"HAPPIER SOLDIERS"

A recent issue of Yank, the Army's weekly newspaper, suggests revision of Army postal service regulations to cut down boat space and make the "soldiers a lot happier."

In one Army postal center alone, is a warehouse full of incorrectly addressed papers. And men in Hawaii were receiving third-class circulars telling them what movie was playing at their local theater!

To carry all the mail in November, said the article, the equivalent of three 11,000-ton Liberty ships was necessary. The volume of mail at the year's end would require 25 ships carrying nothing but mail.

A number of ideas were presented for expediting the problem, among them confining first class mail to V-mail, banning its use to advertisers. The boys need their mail, but in these days, we can't afford to waste boat space on wrong addresses or third-class circulars!

CAN EVERYTHING!

Millions of American women will turn to for the home-canning season this year, working to eke out ration coupons, with unrationed shelves of vegetables, fruits, and jams, against the next winter's dwindling supply. School cafeterias, church kitchens, and local civic centers in some towns, will be made availabel for community canning. Committees of neighbors are pooling canning facilities.

The civilian share of the 1943 commercial canned goods is uncertain. Uncle Sam must have about 55 per cent of the fruit pack and about 40 per cent of some vegetables. Food for the armed forces will come first. It will be up to the home front army to go into the kitchen and stir the steaming cauldron!

Glass jars for fruit and jelly will be available, but former closures for the jars are replaced by porcelain with steel rims or by glass. Many stores supply recipes received from glass jar manufactures, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and other agencies who put out booklets on home canning that won't spoil.

Point value for a can of fruit being 24, and for a can of green beans 14, the essential encouragement for canning already exists! It wasn't so bad to begin with, for most had a few cans ahead of rationing. The pinch will come when present stocks give out. We'd better can everything but the kitchen stove itself this year!

—you increase the effectiveness of America's war machine!

Every mile of telephone wire, every piece of equipment, is part of America's war machine. War work has given the lines more calls to handle than they have ever handled before. More wires, more switchboards could be used, but to manufacture them would take important materials away from the shooting side of war.

But the existing network can handle far more calls if each call is answered as promptly as possible.

We now handle on the Pacific Coast more than 12,400,000 calls a day. Two seconds saved on each call would enable us to handle over 160,000 more calls daily. That would be an effective contribution to the war effort.

Will you, in home or office, do what you can to help save these important seconds in telephone time?

We appreciate your co-operation.

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

"Another Claudia" by Rose Franken.

You who are acquainted with the "Claudia" series will, no doubt, stop reading this article even before you begin, I'm afraid. But, wait a minute. The reason I said you will stop reading this is because you will have already read this last of a series of three about her. I do not believe you would stop reading if you have not yet read it. And please, all of you, do not hesitate to read this, the last of the series, before you read the two preceding ones. It is not necessary. "Another Claudia" is complete in itself, entirely independent of the others.

I loved Claudia. She is a real person to me. In fact, in my circle of acquaintances it was easy for me to imagine Claudia as one of my dearest friends. To be able to personalize characters, especially lovable ones, in a book, is to make the book yours.

Claudia is a young wife, a modern girl, with an adoring husband and a handsome one too, so she thinks. And who is there to contradict her! She wins your favor from the first page of the book and anything she utters is gospel to you. She is blessed with a natural repartee which is matched with that of David's, her husband. Into their lives have come two babies, boys, enriching their love for each other. There is nothing unusual, extremely out of the ordinary or terribly exciting in the theme of the book, and I feel that because of the lack of extremes the author has succeeded in creating something so beautifully realistic that it will be a sweet memory long after the book is closed.

The setting and the time of the story is the present and into the final pages war creeps in and takes David away from his Claudia and his two sons, but that is only natural and loyal in a time like this. Claudia's courage in facing the situation of separation is an inspiration and will be of benefit to many who are so placed today.

The author's expertness in theme, her uncanny and disturbing perception, knows how to tell a story of human interest and she does it with finesse.

present wave of prosperity is due to the demands of the war. Unfortunately not so many seem to realize that it cannot be permanent and that when the war is over this form of prosperity will end. Laughing Around the World
With IRVIN S. COBB

In Other Words a No-Run Tie

By IRVIN S. COBB

YEARS ago I knew a man who had a right, if ever a man had, to be called a character. He loved baseball with a love which passed understanding. Any time there was a game between scrub teams anywhere in our country you could count upon Uncle Giles being among those prominently present. A close play left him practically incoherent with joy and excitement.

Late in life he made his first trip outside the boundaries of the state. He took advantage of a popular excursion rate to go over to St. Louis where he remained for two crowded and thrilling days.

Upon his return I met him at the depot. I was a cub reporter then on a local daily; and for purposes of publishing his impressions, which I knew would be picturesque, I proceeded to interview him.

"Uncle Giles," I said, "what was it you saw on your trip that struck you most forcibly?"

"Well, son," he said, "if I seen one interestin' sight I must a-seen a thousand. When I seen 'em sellin' watermelon by the slice, and hit the middle of August, I says to myself that wonders will never cease.

"But son,"—and here his old eyes brightened with a reminiscent gleam—"I reckon the greatest thing I seen was a baseball game day before yesterday. 'Twas a game between these yere St. Louies and them there Detroits. Son, them boys played 'leven endin's and they wasn't ary one made ary one."

Spring Party Event of May 7

Friday afternoon, May 7, is the date when friends and members of the Country Woman's club will enjoy the Spring Party to be given in the club rooms at the library.

This affair promises to be one of the most colorful events of the season with the proceeds to be used for war work of various kinds.

Cards and games will be played during the afternoon while those who wish may bring their Red Cross work or just spend the afternoon in friendly conversation.

The party will begin at 2 o'clock and tea will be served by members of the club.

Mrs. G. E. Jeffers, the club's president, has named the following commitee chairmen: Mrs. E. L. Farnham, decorations; Mrs. W. H. Van Dyke; refreshments; Mrs. Sue Boyce, tickets; Mrs. R. H. Hyde, door prizes.

Tickets may be obtained from any member of the club.

The First Baptist church choir of San Jose, of some thirty voices, will sing one part of "The Holy City" by Gaul, over radio station KQW Easter Sunday morning at 10 o'clock and in the evening at 8 p. m. the entire oratorio will be sung at the church. C. P. Klassen of Campbell is director of the choir and states that several of the number are service men stationed in San Jose.

Congressman Jack Anderson on the Radio Friday

Congresman Jack Anderson, this district's representative in Congress, will make an enlightening report to the people of the district Friday night, April 23 over the radio on wartime conditions in California and the bay area. The Congressman will be heard in an interview with Glenn R. Baker over station KQW between 6 and 6:15.

The Congressman will have some interesting information to impart when Baker asks him pertinent questions about what the House committee found in its investigations on the West Coast.

Anderson has just completed an intensive investigation as a member of a sub-committee of the House Naval Affairs committee. The committee has been holding hearings in the bay area for more than a week, and called before it representatives of virtually every wartime activity. This talk will be the Congressman's last before returning to Washington on Saturday.

During the past week Anderson has met with leaders throughout his district, comprising San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties. At these conferences many wartime problems in this district were discussed and Friday night the Congressman will give a full report to his radio audience.

Number, Please!

Do you have trouble remembering numbers? If so, you should call on Corp. John Crapp of Fairbanks, Pa., who is stationed at Keesler Field, Miss. Corporal Crapp makes a hobby of remembering army serial numbers and at one time could rattle off those of 150 of his friends with scarcely a pause for breath—and most army serial numbers run into eight digits.

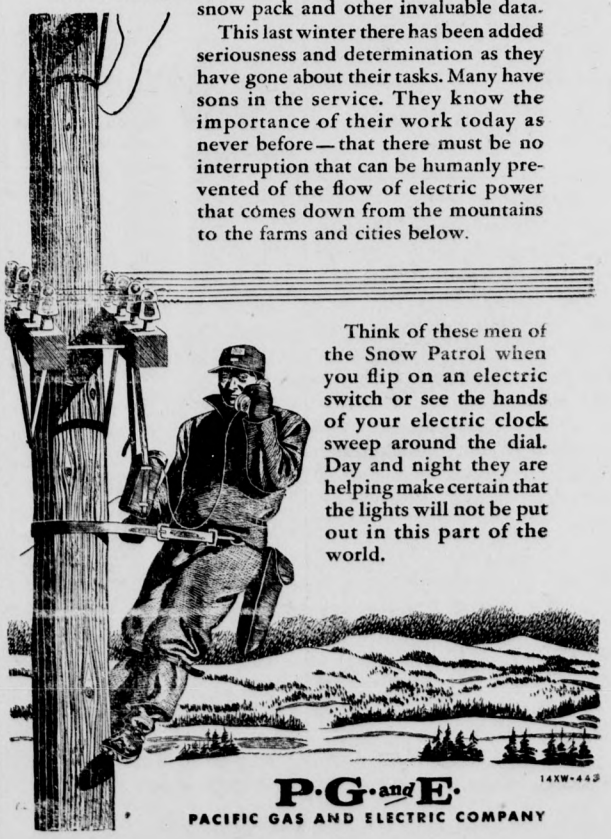
SNOW PATROL
at J-7

Like the sweep of the hands around the clock, day and night men of this company's Snow Patrol have spent the winter in the high places where hydroelectric power is born. Up and down canyons and ravines and skirting lakes and forebays these men in lonely vigil have followed the mountain freshets, the flumes, ditches and power lines.

SOME OF THESE MEN help maintain feeding stalls for deer in cooperation with the U. S. Fish and Game Commission. From their outpost stations, too, they make daily reports to the U. S. Weather Bureau as to wind velocity, depth of snow, moisture content of the snow pack and other invaluable data.

This last winter there has been added seriousness and determination as they have gone about their tasks. Many have sons in the service. They know the importance of their work today as never before—that there must be no interruption that can be humanly prevented of the flow of electric power that comes down from the mountains to the farms and cities below.



Think of these men of the Snow Patrol when you flip on an electric switch or see the hands of your electric clock sweep around the dial. Day and night they are helping make certain that the lights will not be put out in this part of the world.
